FOLLOW THROUGH.

When an amateur begins to take lessons in the game of golf and he gets his pointers on driving, the thing that the instructor tells him is to "keep your eye on the ball and follow through." By that he means not to merely meet the ball with the club, but to allow the driver to complete the circle of the swing, in order that the ball will get added distance.

It hardly seems right for the chapters to say that the difficulties they have experienced during the past year have been no light matter when so many of the alumni and older men have had experiences and troubles which far outshadow ours. As the memories of how much we did not do for our men in the service comes back to us, we are ashamed of our loyalty to them and to Alpha Rho Chi. We did not do our duty, we neglected it. The men are coming back, they are wondering if we have forgotten them and if we have the true interests of our fraternity at heart. Let us show them that we will put our best into the task that awaits us—to build up the spirit and momentum we had before the war in our chapters, in our alumni, and in the union of the chapters.

Boys, let's get behind that drive and follow through.

For a long time we have talked of the extension of Alpha Rho Chi into other Universities and now the work has commenced. In Brother McConkey's and in Brother Ditchy's letters we see that there awaits a big opportunity, and Brother Ditchy is inaugurating a splendid extension program which cannot help but succeed if we just back him up in whatever he does. The Grand Council has started the drive. They are following through on their drive. It is up to the chapters now to prove that they have the "after the war come-back" spirit, that they are stick-ers, and that they can be relied on to do their part.

Let's get going and let's follow through on that drive!
TAPS ETERNAL.
Brother Lieutenant Sense of Anthemios chapter, died July 27, 1918, from wounds received at Chateau Thierry. He came to Illinois as a student in architecture, but did not remain to graduate. In June, 1917, he was married to Miss Cardelia Curly of Beaver-ville, Ill., and shortly after left for Fort Sheridan. He received the commission of second lieutenant and left for further training in France in January, 1918, where he was given further training for six weeks before going to the trenches. He saw most of the fighting on the Flanders front and, about the time of his death he was thought to be at Chateau Thierry, in the mighty drive at the Soissons-Rheims salient. He went over the top for the first time July 19, and was mortally wounded in the left shoulder. He was buried in the village of Vittel, France. He is survived by the widow, his father and mother, two sisters and two brothers. Bro. Sense was a member of the Arcus while he was at Illinois. He was a mighty fine man and as a student worked under the heaviest difficulties. To the wife of Brother Sense and to his family we wish to extend our most heartfelt sympathy for this bereavement.

Brother J. Bauer of Iktinos chapter died November 13, 1918, from wounds received in an aeroplane accident on the front. Lieutenant Bauer enlisted in the Aviation Corps in the summer of 1917 and saw action on the French front. Here he did splendid work till the armistice. Two days later, he was struck by another machine while attempting to rise in his own and died a few hours later. We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to Brother Bauer's family and to Iktinos chapter for this loss.

Brother George Sheid of Demetrios chapter died last December from influenza while at Great Lakes Naval Training School. The Archi sends its most sincere sympathy to brother Sheid's relatives and to Demetrios chapter.

REGIONAL ARCHITECTURE.
By Professor Rexford Neucomb

With the advent of peace and the return of our land to a more normal and constructive program, there have been many queries and many forecasts regarding the effect of the war upon American architecture and American architectural practice. Just what trend the practice of architecture in America will take is difficult to forecast at the present time. It is safe to predict, however, that from now on American architecture, as a vital, living expression, as a perfect index to our life and thought and as a distinct entity in the world’s architecture, will mean much more to the younger men of the profession than ever before. This realization has been brought about by a series of events.

In the first place the war has had a tremendous unifying influence upon the thought of the American people politically, socially and economically, and this will function to further unify our architectural expression. Again many of our young men have been overseas and have noted the differences between foreign and American ways and likewise foreign and American architecture, and those who have not been abroad have had an opportunity to see, in one branch of the service or another, a considerable portion of our own country, and have been brought face to face with the realization that, after all, there is a peculiar spirit pervading all things American. The draftsman-soldier in traveling about our country has had borne in upon him, more than once, the fact that no matter in what part of the country he encounters American architectural art, be it in New England or sunny California, there is, after all, running through all this work a certain feeling of openness and democracy—a certain freedom of speech too—which from the earliest period of American history has characterized our national expression. There is no mistaking an American building. It has a spirit about it that is, after all, American. The designer who wonders if we are ever to have an “American style” may be told that we have already an American feeling in our architecture, although, perhaps, we shall never have an American style in all the phases that that term implies. These reasons must at once become apparent.

In the first place the United States as a country is a widely flung sisterhood of states with many ranges of climate, with an ever-varying geological and topographical configuration, and wide different historic and ethnic backgrounds. For these reasons, and various others social and economic, it becomes apparent that a type of architecture adapted to a setting in our New England States would appear ridiculous and exotic in Southern California and that a building adapted to the summer heat and intense sunshine of Texas would appear out of place in the older portions like Pennsylvania or Massachusetts. Might not a lot of the architectural mistakes that have been made in our country have been due to the failure of designers to recognize and abide by the environmental conditions above mentioned? We are constantly discovering in our middle west and eastern states examples of the so-called “Mission architecture” and “bungalows,” types which by their very limitations belong only in the Southwest or in similar settings and climates that have similar historical backgrounds. Wouldn’t it be much more logical, instead of “adapting” something exotic, no matter how fine that thing might be in itself, to make the inspiration for the design from the landscape, abide by the geological significance and recognize the historic background of the particular locality in which the building is to stand?

In the early history of our country there were developed in the various localities several types of regional architecture that the designer of today would do well to consider and study if he is to make his architecture indigenous and a logical outgrowth of the environment, a thing that architecture has meant from the very beginning of the history of building. Among these types might be mentioned the English "Colonial" of the Atlantic Seaboard, the Dutch "Colonial" of New York and Pennsylvania, the Georgian vernacular of the South, the half-French, half-Spanish of New Orleans and vicinity, the Mexican influence in Texas, the Pueblo-Spanish of New Mexico and Arizona, and the Mission Style in California. All these types, were developed out of a consideration of elemental needs and under primitive conditions, are indigenous, belong to the setting, reflect perfectly the historic and ethnic significances, and are capable of use in modern work.

The problem of designers then, since it will be seen that it is impossible to get a "style" that will answer the purpose of all settings and situations in the United States, becomes one of developing rather these regional types and a putting into them as much of the spirit of America, as much of our thought and life and idealism as is possible. A procedure of this sort does not imply a slavish or archaeological use of the various elements available but a mastery of the spirit of the builders of old and an approaching of modern problems in the spirit of the old builders, who met the work-a-day problem in the spirit of honest craftsmanship and with a sincerity that is admirable. Should we build upon the beginnings that have already been made, taking all the inspiration that we can muster from the best that the world has to offer, but at the same time shrinking from parrot-like "adaptations" of the forms offered, American architecture cannot help but develop into something finer, more logical and thus more appropriate and beautiful than has yet been attained. It will behoove the designer, then, as he goes from one locality to another in our country to master as much as possible of the spirit and feeling of the particular situation in which he is at work. The French Romanesque of Provence and Brittany were far different in feeling. Why should architecture in Colorado be identical with architecture in Ohio?

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS OF A SHAVE-TAIL.

By C. W. Ditchy, W. G. A.

February 25, 1918.

I had a rather unexpected piece of good luck. Yesterday upon returning to my barracks, I received special orders to leave at once for a French school. I packed my bed-roll, lockers, and suit-case and in twenty minutes, was being motored to a neighboring railroad station. I had rather meagre information as to what my new duties would be and for that matter I am still in a quandary. My orders did not even tell me that I was going to a French school.

My journey occupied most of the night including a three hour stop at one place where we changed cars. I fell in with a French captain who was headed for the same school and so had no difficulty in finding it. After we left the station we had a two-mile walk and arrived at the little village (Vadenay) at six o’clock. No one was stirring in the barracks except the Algerian orderlies, and the captain immediately ordered one of these to bring us some hot coffee and warm water. After cleaning up and later having breakfast, I was taken to the study-room where I presented my orders to the major, a Frenchman and the director of the school. One other American, a first lieutenant, was supposed to arrive with me, but as yet he has not appeared, so at present I am the only American here. There are fifteen French officers whom I am supposed to aid in perfecting their English and to instruct in matters concerning American military terms, customs and strength of units. They are all splendid men and treat me with the utmost consideration.

I have a room all to myself with my own bed, a table, a small stand and a stool. Also electric lights. Also an Algerian orderly, “Jadon” by name, who can talk about as much French as I can and understands a little less. But we get on fine. When I want him to do anything, I enact a movie of it and with a broad grin, a “comme ça” and “ah, oui,” he does it.

February 27, 1918.

We have very convenient hours, 9:30 to 11:30 and 2:30 to 5. Dinner is at 6:30 and usually lasts until 8.

One of the officers is a well-known French architect who has an office in Paris, so that makes it especially agreeable to me. All of the officers speak English fairly well. Lieutenant Kittredge, the other American, is a fine fellow and we are still wondering how we happened to be so lucky.

March 22, 1918.

Tomorrow I am going to the bathhouse and Sunday I am going to appear in my serge suit which is to come from the cleaners tomorrow. I have not worn it since I first arrived in France.

March 23, 1918.

This morning, my orderly came in very excitedly and told me that the cleaner’s establishment had been hit by a bomb during last night’s raid and that although he had looked through the ruins he could not find my serge suit.

June 21, 1918.

Kit and I have been teaching the French officers to play baseball. We gave a couple of lectures on it and thought that we had covered all the fine points of the game, but the first man up, after hitting a grounder refused to run to first because he said he knew he could knock the next one farther. And we have an awful time preventing two runners from occupying the same base.
Paris, December 17, 1918.

Friday night, I had a fine time. The ball was given in a fine ball room where an excellent orchestra played American rag and where pretty French maids who knew how to dance American dances were in profusion. And they all spoke English, too. I steered shy of the princesses and countesses and other nobilities and had a splendid time dancing with the young debutantes. Refreshments consisting of bon-bons, cookies, cakes, champagne, etc., were served at one end of the hall. In the lounging room, the girls and princesses, etc., smoked with the officers—scandalous, n'est-ce-pas?

Saturday morning I arose about 8 o'clock and started forth to get a good place from which to see the parade. I had been looking around and warming my way thru the crowd for about fifteen minutes when I suddenly came face to face with old Podevin. He was one of the officers who was sent to America with the Blue Devils to help advertise the Third Liberty Loan. He had been sent back to his regiment a month ago as I thought he was now in Germany. We shook hands and after chatting a few minutes we stirred around to find a good place. We were near the Madeleine and the crowd was enormous. People had brought chairs with them and were standing on them. Men were renting standing room in push-carts, others had boxes. Just then two girls came along and noticing that Podevin had the Legion of Honor medal, they asked him if he could help them cross the street, as they wanted to get to the Rue Royal to their millinery shop which was on the upper floor and from which they could get a fine view of the parade. Podevin said he would try—people usually pay a great deal of respect to a "legionnaire"—but the crowd was so packed that we could get nowhere near the curb. So we decided to walk down a few blocks. Suddenly I looked over the heads of the crowd and there standing right on the curb in the front row was Kit. I yelled and he finally heard me....He was on his way to Nice....We finally got the girls up to their shop and had a fine view of the parade, saw Wilson, Poincare, Pershing, Mrs. Wilson, and all the rest.

Ever since the president arrived, Paris has been wild. Every night there is dancing on the boulevards and every one seems to be on a vacation. Every fifty yards or so some soldier is playing a mouth organ or an accordion or a fiddle and five or ten couples are dancing while the others are looking on.

MUSESICLES CHAPTER.

Musesicles surely welcome this privilege of contributing to the new Archi. Somehow or other we have all missed the little "pep-reviver" and hope that this time it is back for good.

Since the last issue of the Archi, there have been several events of importance which have happened to Musesicles. Just about a year ago we began negotiations for the affiliation with the other Architectural society at Minnesota. After quite a few letters had been scribed, we finally brought about the merger and today boast one of the strongest professional fraternities upon the campus, due to a very large extent to the harmony and close co-operation in the Architectural Department.

Last October we, as all the other fraternities, closed our house for the duration of the war. Several of the brothers were in the S. A. T. C. continuing their regular work. Mnesicles kept herself alive, however. Meeting were held in a club room which we fitted out near campus. Several rushing parties were pulled off there between th “fallings out and in.” At the beginning of the year, after the war was definitely settled, we were on our feet almost quicker than any other fraternity at Minnesota. We succeeded in obtaining a very fine house on “fraternity row” and were ready with “open doors” when the influx of brothers from the various training camps commenced.

Most of our men are back but there are several who will not return to school until the fall quarter. Ed Buenger ’19 returned the eighteenth of December from Camp Taylor where he was commissioned. H. M. Davidson, ’20 returned two days later from the same place, also a lieutenant. Davidsen also spent several months at Fort Sheridan, from which place he was transferred to Camp Taylor. Harvey King, ’18, came back from New York an Ensign. At present Brothers King and Ellingsen of Mnesicles and Rounds of Anthelmios are with the firm of Craft & Boerner, Architects and Engineers, Duluth, Minn. M. L. Anderson returned to school the beginning of the spring quarter. He was stationed at Lone Field, Texas. D. H. Ellison was in the aerial photography service. Ed Larson, after being commissioned at Fort Sheridan, was sent to Texas. W. R. Mixer, our first W. A. was commissioned in the Aviation service at Boston Tech. George Fraser, ’18, was at Washington, D. C., engaged in topographical work. Myron Dosset, ’17, in the ambulance service has been cited for bravery. Lieutenant Roland Blessley, ’18, was wounded in France in an aeroplane combat with three German planes. Capt. Milton M. Latta and Lieut. H. R. Gerlack, both ’19, are in the army of occupation. Mnesicles will welcome these two men back again, for they surely have seen much service across the pond. Our Architectural department boasts the largest percentage of officers of any college in the University.

The opening of the University under a normal curriculum was manifest by numerous social activities. On May 11 we staged a banquet in honor of our fine freshmen who had just been initiated. We were particularly successful in picking our men this year and congratulate ourselves. The competition with academic fraternities is becoming a factor of interest to Mnesicles. This shows what a live bunch the architects are around this campus. Last week we announced the pledging of three new men. At present we have an active chapter of twenty-one, and will lose only four men by graduation in June.

On May 5, the election of officers for the coming year took place. The men elected are:

W. A. A.—M. J. Anderson.
W. E.—F. A. Kleinschmidt.
W. S.—M. L. Anderson.
Supt.—F. Moorman.
H. Mgr.—E. Larson.
Steward—C. H. Dock.

Our chapter has made several steps into prominence due to the activities of the various brothers. Brother Kleinschmidt held down a guard position on the Varsity football team last season. Anyone who follows football knows that it takes a good man to hold a position on Doc Williams’ team. In spring practice Kleinic is playing full-back and right end and looks like best bet for either job on the 1919 team.

In the track we are also represented by brother Anderson who hits the cinders to the tune of the mile and half mile. We beat Iowa in a dual meet on May 10th. Brother Bakken, one of our frosh, bids fair to nail a position next year as a hurdler. Brothers R. W. Hammett, G. B. Deane, H. J. Korslund, and S. V. Wright are all members of Tau Beta Pi, honorary Engineering fraternity. Tau Sigma Delta, honorary Architectural fraternity includes the names of Hammett, Wright, Buenger, Fraser, Korslund, and Kleinschmidt. Brother M. J. Anderson has been elected to “Grey Friars” Senior honorary organization at Minnesota. Brother Anderson was also Art Editor on the staff which has just put out the 1920 Gopher, a Junior class publication. Brother Ed. Larson has been appointed to the same position on the 1921 staff.

Looking forward into the future we see a very successful year for Mniesicles. Our Architectural department has grown and now comprises the third and fourth floors of the Main Engineering building. Mr. S. C. Burten, head of the Art department and honorary member of Mniesicles, says we have the finest freehand studio in the country. The Juniors and Seniors have a separate drafting room removed from the emanating music of our enthusiastic frosh. Professor Ray Childs Jones, Senior instructor in Design, has returned from France where he was engaged in Camouflage.

IKTINOS CHAPTER.

Every organization has its own story of its troubles during the war period and Iktinos chapter is no exception. We have certainly had our share but have weathered the storm; with new men coming in and older men returning next year, the future looks exceedingly bright.

The S. A. T. C. at Michigan, as at other schools, crowded all other matters to the background so that during the first semester Iktinos made no attempt to organize till after Christmas. The brothers then took rooms together in the same house that we had last year, but did not try to run a fraternity house. A club room was also rented on the first floor for rushing purposes so that Iktinos would no entirely cease to exist.

At the close of the first semester we had seven men. The beginning of the next semester brought us three new men, however, whom we were very glad to see. Lieut. Kenyon returned after a very active part in the war. Brother Rogers was discharged from camp in time to enter and Brother Cooper transferred his membership from Anthemios to Iktinos. At least six of the men living together now will be here next year, and with this year's quota of Freshmen and the return of others who were not discharged in time to take work this semester, we hope to have about fifteen or twenty men to open the house next year. Just where the house will be has not yet been determined but when we find the right one we intend to make it our own. The Alumni chapter in Detroit has taken a very active interest in the "After-the-War" welfare of Iktinos. If we are able to live next year in a house we own, we shall owe our thanks to the Alumni chapter.

The size of a chapter depends to a great extent on the size of the department which it must choose from. This year the Michigan Architectural Department is, of course, much smaller than usual. We have, however, been successful in getting a few good Freshmen. Professor Lorch has succeeded in bringing many very good exhibits in the last year, many of them being principally for our benefit. We have had a very valuable collection of war paintings by soldiers of France; these were brought here under the care of Monsieur Le Blanc. A large group of pictures of French Cathedrals was shown another time. Earlier in the year an assemblage of large photographs, supplemented by lectures by Professor Good, year shows the refinement of French Cathedrals. Last year a number of sketches and renderings by Mr. Wilson Ayres of Philadelphia were exhibited.

A very unique celebration was held this spring by the department to commemorate a great event. The Campus has for many years been marred by a group of old wooden structures adjacent to the Engineering building. The campus has been improved from time to time, but the old one story Surveying buildings with their cupolas and moss-covered roofs remained untouched, much to the disgust of the school in general and the Architectural department in particular. The Michigan Alumni will be glad to hear that they were at last removed. Hence, the celebration. It consisted of a procession which marched around the campus at midnight, bearing a wooden effigy of one of the buildings. A chant was sung and a gong sounded at definite intervals which made it very impressive. Arriving at the newly cleared ground a ring was formed and the effigy burned amid—not sobs—but shouts of joy that the scare-crow buildings were gone.

__PERSONALS.__

Lieut. Kenyon has greatly entertained the chapter since his return from the war, by his accounts of his experiences and observations. At times, they are almost unbelievable, but as they hang together very well, we know that he is not exaggerating them in the least. He enlisted in the Naval Reserves before the war, but later transferred to the Aviation section. He trained principally in Texas before being sent to England. After three months instruction he was sent to the front. There he took part in scouting expeditions and bombing raids and several times, he engaged German planes. On September 2, 1918, while diving for a Hun aeroplane, he was attacked from above by another. The German pilot made a hole in his gasoline tank which forced him to land just inside the enemy lines. Another bullet made a wound in his foot. He was made a prisoner and held till the war was over. It was not until after his arrival in America that he knew he had shot down the German plane he was after. Brother Kenyon says that because he was an officer and an American he was comparatively well treated while a prisoner. He had many conveniences which one would not expect. The main trouble was the poor food. The prisoners relied almost entirely on the Red Cross of England and America to supply this, although the German government deducted for food from their pay. His activities at the front and his capture seem to him like a dream—some parts like a nightmare, he admits—but a very wonderful experience as a whole. He is very glad, as all return soldiers are, to be sent back here now and we are certainly glad to have him.

Brother Battin has been transferred to the Entertainment Division, due to his dexterity with the drums.

Ensign Rindge is dismantling the Rifle Range at San Pedro, California.

Professor Cross has returned from Red Cross work in Italy where he had charge of Railroad Canteens. His organizing ability was used in this work to a great advantage. He expects to return to his instruction in Fine Arts next fall and we are glad to have him with us once more.

Lieutenant Ditchy is back in Detroit after active duty in France. Brother Vorhees was in town a few days ago and says he knows enough about camouflaging after a year of that work on the big guns to keep a furniture salesman away from a bridal couple.

Lieutenant Miller is back in Detroit in body, but in spirit he is with his girls in Newton, Mass.

Brother Hamer is trying to get away as a designer in Detroit, and it is said that he is succeeding.
When Brother Campbell was in school he was called "Walt" but from the latest reports he is now called "Daddy."

GREETINGS FROM DEMETRIOS.

Although we have received almost a knockout blow from the war, we are still alive and full of pep. At the beginning of this school year there were only three actives in school, but with the return of one man from the army and another from the navy, and the initiations of four men, that can't be beat, we now boast of an active chapter of nine men. It was out of the question to maintain a house this year, but that has not kept us from holding our weekly meetings and having the usual amount of good times. We have had social smokers, a dance, and two banquets, besides backing up and taking part in all of the affairs of the Architectural Club of our department. We have arranged for our annual Home-coming banquet at the Chittenden Hotel, Saturday, May 24, the date of the Big Six track meet, and from all indications will have many alumnae with us. The main object will be to make plans for next year, including the running of a house.

Although there are but thirty-six students, including eight girls, in the Architectural Department this semester, all other departments are envious, because of the good times we have; which, however have not interfered with our work, and we are rapidly putting the Department of Architecture of Ohio State University on the map. We expect much encouragement and inspiration from the larger chapters in this issue of the "Archi" (Demetrios has had 100 per cent of active chapter in service and about 90 per cent of alumnae).

ANTHEMIOS CHAPTER
CHAPTER NEWS.

Well, here we are with the war passed over; just like the sun peeping out from behind the clouds after a shower. To tell you the truth, you would never know that the old gang had passed through such a trying time if it wasn’t for the many new things that we have around the house. Just as the shower brightens up Mother Earth, so the war has brightened us up in more than one way. For instances: we sold all the old furniture with the coming of the army and now we have all new stuff; and Oh Boy, but she does shine. When Spike Arrasmith stepped in the front door after his Xmas vacation and gave the place the once over for the first time, his first remark was: “Oh, if only my girl could see us now.”

Last fall we, that is twelve of us, came back as usual but found the school rather unusual in that they intended making soldiers of us and barracks of the house. We met them more than half way though, and for the first three weeks we fed and housed more than a hundred of the “would be” soldiers. By that time the government was ready for us and we were all sent into barracks and workmen began preparing our house for the aviators. While this was going on we rented three club rooms from brother Parr’s mother and fitted them up with a few choice pieces of our furniture. The rest of the furniture we sold.

From then until the demobilization of the S. A. T. C. at Xmas time we lead the double life of students and soldiers, with all of us keeping the home fires burning in the club rooms, and with many a pleasant visit from some of the old boys in the service as they had a chance to pass through Champaign.

Two days before the armistice was signed we all got leave from barracks and initiated three new men. As they are probably new to you, I will present them. Arlos R. Sedgely, step up! Scotty is from Omaha or Seattle I am not sure which. His mother seems to think that he is from Omaha, while his “future” says Seattle. Next is Lloyd Lucius Huntington, from God only knows where. He spends most of his time in Y. M. C. A. meetings while in school and in Y. M. Camps in the summer time so I guess that he is from God’s country at least. Baldy takes a great interest in coaching the grade school track teams. He is also editor of this sheet, so all hail. The third new man is none other than myself, Joe Wildermuth. I was pledged a couple years ago but did not get back to school until last fall.

As soon as we knew that the S. A. T. C. would be demobilized, we made arrangements to get our old house back. We were very lucky here, in that, although the government had the house all cleaned and fixed for the aviators, the school was broken up before they ever moved in. So instead of finding a very dirty and torn up house, as most of the other fraternities did, we had quite a clean place to start with. We had the woodwork and floors all gone over though, and then stocked the house up with new furniture. We were very proud of the place when we had it finished.

So when we returned after Xmas we found ourselves in the old house once again, with everything as spick and span as could be. Our same cook and housekeeper were back on the job. Really, it didn't seem that we had just passed through a war period.

We got busy right away and on the first Monday evening we gave our annual freshman smoker to the freshie archs. There were about thirty of them over and it was a great success in every way. I am sure that they all went away with a good impression of the bunch and of our house.

At the regular meeting of January 13, the following officers were elected for the last half of the school year:

W. A.—Willard Snyder.
W. A. A.—Macon Abbitt.
W. E.—Hurlbert Cheever.
W. S.—Lloyd Huntington.
W. C.—William Hallauer.
H. M.—Harry Ziemann.
Supt.—Harry Tour.
Librarian—Leslie Hug.

Wallie Overend was the first of the men to return to the house from his duties with Uncle Sam. Wallie had been stationed at the University of Michigan since he had received his commission at Fort Sheridan last summer.

Next, we decided that we wanted a dance, so on the first evening of February we hopped to it in that wonderful old dorm or ball room, as you are a mind to call it, that we have on the third floor. After the strenuous army work of the first quarter, it was a pleasure to get a little relaxation, so, to say the least, we enjoyed the dance. Dewey Somdal was over from Springfield for the affair. Herr Ziemann kept him so busy throwing water color on his sketch problem while he was here that I wonder if he meant it when he said that he had had a fine time. Deuchler was also down for the dance.

Before going any further I wish to say something of our affiliation with the American Institute of Architects. We first received the news of this while we were in the S. A. T. C. last fall. It promises to be one of the big things of the chapter. Meetings are held in Chicago every month and we are usually represented by one or more of the fellows. Brothers Abbitt, Snyder, and Lee are the men who have represented up so far.

The first of the really old men to return from their war work was Arthur Lee. Art dropped in on us one day while we were at the dinner table. You would hardly have known from his reserved manner that he had held down a captaincy in the air service.

The next on our program was a tea dance and birthday party given on Saturday afternoon and evening, March eighth. Following a delightful afternoon spent in dancing, a seven o'clock birthday dinner was served in honor of Miss Shott of Northwestern University and Charles Sutton. Miss Pabst and Miss Shott of Northwestern University were the out of town guests.

The annual Y. M. C. A. Jubilee show was set to take place on Wednesday evening, April first. We handed in a sketch for an act at the last moment and were awarded a place on the program by the committee picking the stunts. As the Illini said, "Alpha Rho Chi heads the program with L'Atelier." We presented an artistic skit of crayon talks, motion pictures, cartoons, etc. Everyone carried his part well and the stunt went off in good shape. Macon Abbitt, as the professor, was especially good.

At the beginning of the spring quarter we found two more of the old men back with us. Clifford Hutton had been stationed in California as a Lieut. of coast artillery. Cliff was unable to get a program fixed up for this quarter so returned home with plans for coming back next year. Newcomb, the other man to return, got fixed up and is still with us. Newk spent most of his time playing in the various naval bands while in the service. Harding the university band leader was about as glad to see Newk back as we were. You can find Newk out leading the band most anytime that Harding does not get around to it himself.

The next of the old men to return from the hold of the war god, Mars, was Duke Strong. Duke graduated once so he didn’t care to enroll again, but he did like us so well that he accepted a position with an Urbana architect and is still holding out as my room mate. Duke had been in charge of a squadron at Pensacola as a Lieut. of naval aviation. He reports some interesting experiences with the flying boats.

The second initiation of the year took place on April nineteenth when Charles Sutton and George Whitten were given the ritual. Both are promising sophomores of whom we expect much. Chuck was secretary of his class last year.

On the evening of April twenty-sixth we held our second house dance. The worst fault that we can find with our house dances is the fact that we can only hold three a year. Ensign George Lindeberg was down to show us his new uniform, and Dutch was back as usual. Squeak Hartwell was here to represent the Alumni and to give us a little jass on the banjo.

At the regular meeting of May 26, the following officers were elected for the first quarter of next year:

W. A.—Clifford Hutton.
W. A. A.—Willard Snyder.
THE ARCHI OF ALPHA RHO CHI

Librarian—Charles Sutton.
W. E.—Harry Ziemann.
W. S.—Lloyd Huntington.
W. C.—William Hallauer.
H. M.—George Postle.
Supt.—Harry Tour.

As this paper goes to press, we are planning our big spring dance. It will come off this Friday evening, and from the looks of things it will be the best affair that we have had in quite a while. Dancing will last until twelve with dinner afterwards. A bunch of the old men are coming back for the week end, so we will have quite a reunion. Bert Thorud, just returned from France, will be down from Chicago with his sister and another girl. Others coming from Chicago are: George Lindeberg, Noisy Weatherford and probably Bennie Benson. Dewy Somdal will be over from Springfield and Wallie Overend is expected to drive down from Edelstein. Spider Webb is coming up from old Kentucky and we are expecting several other old men to blow in at the last minute.

With the passing of our spring dance, the finals will loom up and then another school year will have come to an end. Our prospects for next year are very bright. At present it looks as though we will have twenty-five old men back next fall, with every mail bringing news of another old man who expects to get back. With this as a starter we should have no trouble at all as the house and everything else is in good condition to take the pick of the new men. The department is fast recovering itself and a large enrollment is expected next year. The future of Anthemios looks good. We have passed the crisis and can see only big things for the future.

THE DEPARTMENT.

Our department is as well off as could be expected for conditions as they are and have been for the last couple years. Although the enrollment has fallen off considerable we still have about seventy-five students left, and what is more, the department is keeping up its standard if not actually raising it.

The big new Ricker Memorial Library is being well rounded out. We are proud of this library and believe it to be one of the best, if not the best, in any American university. We are proud of the fact that it is dedicated to one of our honorary members. The instructing staff is in good shape although the ravages of war have been felt very heavily there. We feel especially lucky to get to work under Mr. Morgan, the new freehand man. Mr. Morgan is credited with having been one of the best freehand designers in Chicago before coming here and we have all learned much of practical designing under his teaching. Rexford Newcomb, our new professor of architectural history is also proving himself to be an invaluable man. He is a cousin of Brother Newcomb. Other new men in the department this year are: T. E. O'Donnel, who took Mr. Southwell's place as instructor in sophomore engineering design, and Mr. Livesay, who is the new instructor on the graphics staff. Mr. O'Donnel is an old Archus man, having graduated in 1912.

There has been much temptation on the part of University to lower the standard in several courses by making irregular schedules and by changing the requirements in order to accommodate the old men returning from war. We are glad that the department here has resisted that temptation very sternly, although it has several times meant the sending home of our men who had returned from war expecting to get started in school immediately. They will be back with us next fall and glad, both for us and for themselves, that the department has kept up its standard.

With the starting in of a new year next fall, we expect the department to reach its former enrollment and from them on it has a great future before it.

PERSONALS.

Harry Overend is still performing the duties of a captain in France, but writes that he hopes to be out of the service soon. He intends to either take a short course at the Beaux Arts School in Paris or to return to the university here and take a year of post graduate work before starting out in public work.

Deuchler has gone into partnership with his brother in general engineering work. Dutch says that he is so busy that he won't be able to get down to our next house dance. You must be some busy Dutch as this is the first dance that you have missed this year.

Dewey Sondal is working in Springfield with Martin, the state architect. Bill Snyder was over to visit Dewey this spring and came back with the news that he had a position in the same office for this summer.

Madeline Thornd was down for the week and a couple weeks ago. It was then that we learned for the first time of her engagement to Duke Strong.

Lieut. Fred Rounds was down for a short visit this spring immediately after getting his discharge from the service. Rosey is another of the old boys who will soon go into a life partnership. The lucky one is none other than our friend Ruth Wycoff. Rounds is now working with Craft and Bierner architects and engineers of Duluth, Minn.

Brother Arrasmith is doing some fine pitching for the Varsity this spring. Spike won his game from Mississippi and Notre Dame and would have probably clipped Chicago's wings if they had put him in at the start. He was recently elected senior representative to the Illinois Union, and he served as chairman of decorations on the junior prom committee and was on the engineering dance committee.

Thiele was down for a short visit over last Sunday. He is now engaged in the mercantile business with his father in Ramsey, Illinois.
Lieut. Joe Creedon was also down to visit us this spring after getting his discharge. Joe had been stationed in California with the coast artillery and liked the west so much that he decided to go back there to start his civilian life.

Lloyd Huntington has been doing some very good work with the Y. M. C. A. this year. He is on the cabinet for next year.

Guests for over Interscholastic weekend were: Mrs. Abbitt of Hopkinsville, Ky., Mrs. Snyder of Mt. Pulaski, Illinois, and Mrs. Wildermuth and Marguerite Witwer of Gary, Indiana.

Lieut. Hartwell was here to attend our second house dance and to pay us a short visit. Squeak is now working with Brother Schmidt in Wichita, Kansas. The last letter from Schmidt says that Squeak is sure making good.

A recent letter from Loui Crawford gives us the information that he is engaged in teaching but is working over the board when off duty in Lompoc, California. He was so enthusiastic over Illinois that he is trying to send us a couple of students all the way from California.

Joe H. Wildermuth is with us again this year after having spent a semester at the university of Arizona. Joe was chairman of decorations on the engineering dance committee and put out some very good decorations.

Wallie Overend left school at the end of last quarter and is now working with his father in Edelstein.

Bert Thorud returned from France last month and is now working for Herbert and Roche in Chicago.

We received an announcement of the marriage of Lorent Schmidt last month. The Archi sends them the best of wishes.

Don’t forget that homecoming next fall. November the first is the date.

Cliff Hutton is at home working on construction work with his father. He will be back with us next year.

Rip Cheever and Macon Abbitt made the art staff of the Illio this year. Macon has also been making some good scenery for the various stunt shows. He made the scenery for the Chi Theta stunt in the Girls Stunt Show and they won the prize. Last year he made the scenery for the Chi Omega stunt and they won.

Joe Patterson is still in Stillwater, Oklahoma, teaching school.

Francis Dunic is enrolled in the Ecaux Arts School in Paris at present.

See you at Home-Coming next fall.

Ensign George Lindeberg has secured his release from the navy and is working with an architect in Chicago.

Dr. Ricker, our most noted honorary member, has just completed the translation of several French architectural books. The industriousness of so old a man should be a lesson to many of us younger men.
Bill Wolfe is with a concrete ship building company, somewhere in the east.

We are going to have some football team next year. Better come back next fall and see us win another championship on November 1.

Pat Griffith is still holding out in Denver.

Leo Michael Rex Bauer was so fond of playing jokes with water while in school that he finally took it to heart and became a gob at Great Lakes. Leo is now practising the chosen profession in Detroit.

Fred Rohn is still at Les Artignes, France in charge of a company doing road work. Fred told of some interesting travels through France and Italy. He met Kewp Beidler quite frequently.

Pete Bishop and Kewp Beidler are both still in France. They did not leave for the army until late last spring, so we think that they were lucky in getting their commissions and a trip to France in that short time.

The university is planning the biggest homecoming in its history for next fall. Your presence is requested.

Shorty Lutes has received his discharge and is working with an architect in St. Louis.

Lester Cristen is still with the ship building company that he started with upon graduating last year.

Lieut. Kober has returned from France and is in an army hospital at Garden City, Long Island for a minor operation.

Duke says that the last heard or seen of Harry Hylen was in New York City the day that war was declared. Please write Harry.

Lieut. Benson has returned from France and is planning on starting a practice in Chicago. Bennie saw quite extensive service in France.

Wesley Connett transferred to the University of Michigan at the beginning of the second quarter. He was back to visit us a couple months ago. He still shows the same old pep.

Frequent letters from Spider Webb tell us that he is still working with a construction company in Louisville. He is one of the old men who are planning on being back with us next fall. Spider’s accounts of his experiences in the army are better than “Life.”

George Postle is working with his father in the architectural practice in Chicago. George is also planning on being back with us next fall.

We are looking for you at Home Coming next fall.

Bill Stuhr is still in France with the engineers. Hi Bill says that he is going to get back to school next fall or bust.

Lieut Fred Keck dropped in on us one evening this spring, having just returned from a long trip in France. Fritz looked as though he had just stepped out of the trenches. He was unable to get a program fixed up in the department, so returned home with the intention of coming back again next year.

It was our desire to make this personnel section as complete as possible. If we have overlooked any material, pardon us. Those of you who have not written or visited us for a long time, please get in touch with the chapter. The one big opportunity for you to come back will be at Home-Coming next fall. Do your best to get here then, and we will guarantee you a good time. We are going to have a big reunion then—November 1, 1919.

LETTERS FROM GRAND COUNCIL OFFICERS.

Brothers in Alpha Rho Chi:

Acceding to the wishes of Brother McConkey and by his authority, I have assumed the duties of Worthy Grand Architect of the Fraternity, my tenure of office to endure until the next National Convention.

In this capacity, and as a fellow-brother, I greet you. I feel as you must, that having safely emerged from under the able guidance of Brother McConkey, the great crisis thru which the world has just passed, a period of prosperity and progress now awaits us. As an organization we may be justly proud of the loyalty and patriotism of Alpha Rho Chi in that struggle, which is manifest in our long roll of men in the service. We mourn the loss of a number of brothers; let us perpetuate their memory and in the silent contemplation of their sacrifice, let us find inspiration and enlightened zeal for the conduct of our future lives.

The problems and the duties which confront us now are the same as those we were charged with before the war. But we meet them now with a broader experience, a broader outlook, and a keener spirit. This spirit is a vital factor in our development. Let us not suffer it to wane and by it, let us strive for those ideals which we have set for ourselves; that we may become an honor to the profession, useful citizens in the communities in which we may live, and gentlemen in the society in which we mingle.

With every good wish, I am

Yours fraternally,

C. W. Ditchy, Acting W. G. A.

A WORD FROM BROTHER McCONKEY.

I am glad to hear that you are about to issue another number of the Archi. Next to a convention, the Archi is the best means of welding our chapters together that we have.

Brother C. W. Ditchy’s return after two years in France is heralded with joy by everyone who knows him. You know that he was W. G. A. at the time he left, I was especially glad to find him willing to take over the work of the W. G. A. once again, as I was temporarily put in, to fill out his unexpired term and as the last few months have found me decidedly overloaded with a number of outside activities in addition to my teaching work, it was with considerable relief that I could turn back into his hands the archives of the W. G. A. and I might add, for the benefit of our members who are not personally acquainted with Brother Ditchy, that there is not another man, to my knowledge, who is better prepared and has a deeper seated ambition for Alpha Rho Chi. He incidentally has two college degrees and was one of the two American officers delegated to teach English in a French Officers' School. He is heart and soul for high ideals of Alpha Rho Chi. He is with Albert Kahn, Architect, Detroit, Michigan.

I appointed Brother L. F. Voorhees (degree Master of Architecture) of Iktinos Chapter who passed thru the Argonne and Chateau Thierry with the A. E. F., to act for the Grand Council at the University of California, where he is now located, and see what can be done towards instituting a chapter there.

I have appointed Brother Howard Gray, one of our oldest charter members, to act in like capacity at Cornell and at Syracuse. His permanent address is but a few miles from either place.

Brother Ditchy is instituting correspondence with a number of our schools, relative to expansion.

It may be interesting to note that during the first semester of this year Demetrics Chapter had no active members at Ohio State University. They were 100 per cent strong in the service. I have had a number of communications from them of late, telling of the return of seven or more of their old members and they have got organization well under way.

Iktinos Chapter feels that the expense of sending a delegate is also of major importance, unless important business is necessary to be transacted by a convention rather than by correspondence. I am, therefore, asking Brother Ditchy to notify all chapters at this time on account of the expense involved and the lack of important business to transact, even though it is well recognized that the principal value of a convention is to get personal contact and benefit of each chapter's experiences.

In a brief and short sketch, Lorentz Schmidt, W. G. E., tells us of his work.

Back in the office after two weeks on a "honeymoon" trip.

My war work was very limited. I failed to get into the army on account of physical disabilities after two applications for work in the Building Department, and so took the next best thing and went into Y. M. C. A. work. I only had three months of that work, because I did not enter until October 1 and my business needed me the first of the year.

At present I am using eight draftsmen, and if there was more space in the drafting room, I could use several more. I did not know that Godfrey Hartwell, who is with me, was an Alpha Rho Chi until after he was working in the office. He certainly is "making good" and I am well pleased with the showing he is making. We have a million dollars worth of work in the office and more is coming in every day.
